C & L RIVET
220 Jacksonville Road
Hatboro, PA 19040

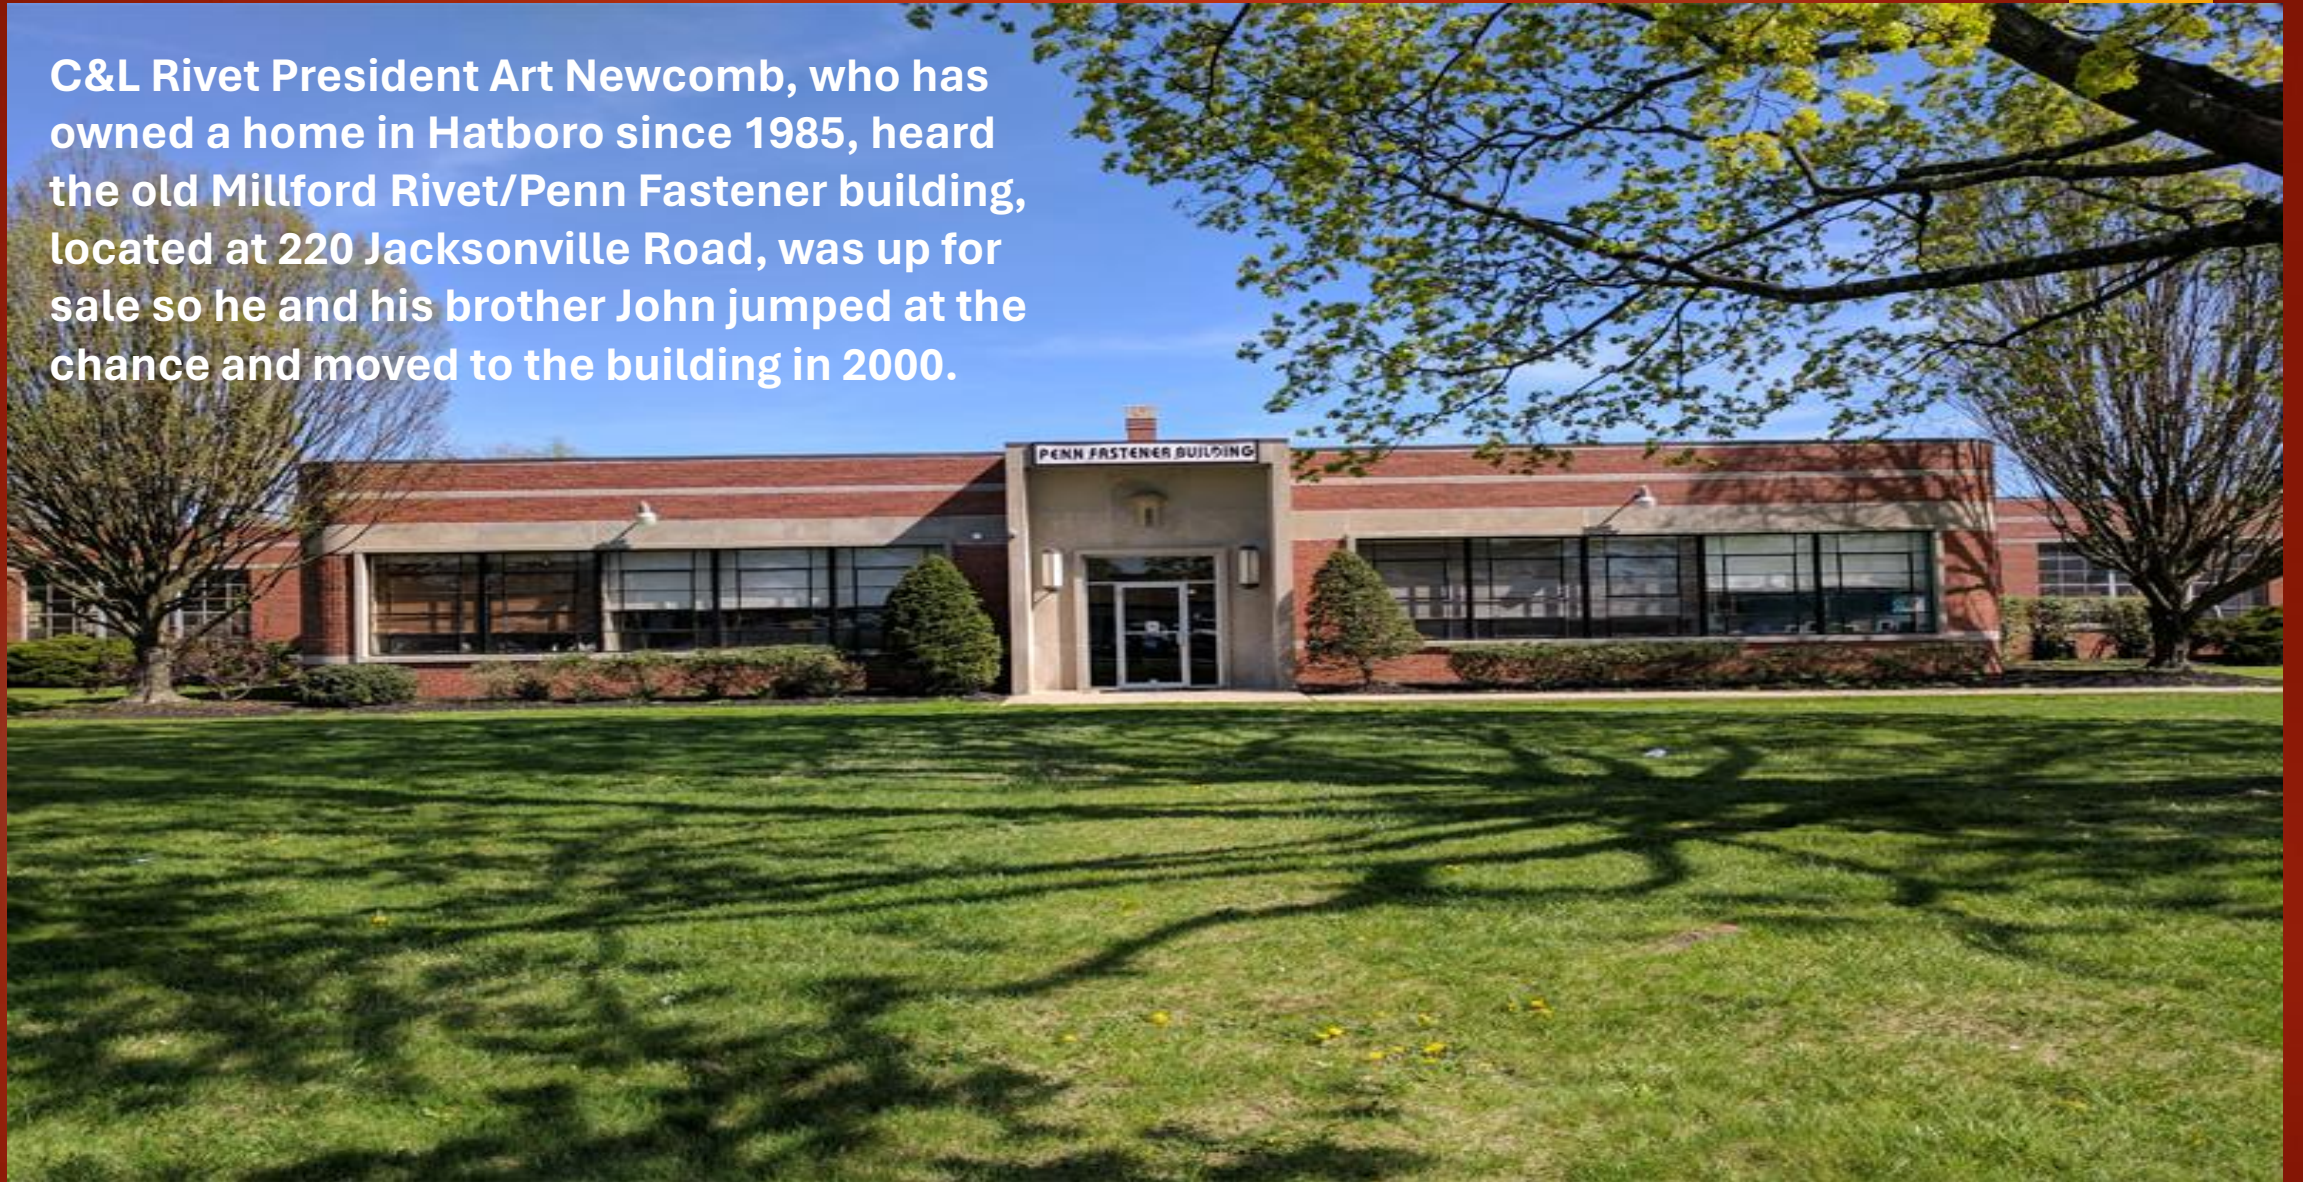

Charles manufactured brake lining rivets as well as a rivet that is used today in nail clippers for Revlon and Lacross (now Sally Hanson) in 1960 at his family home which was located at 247 Broadway Avenue in Horsham, PA.

C&L Rivet was founded by Charles Newcomb, who was a machinist in the Navy.

C&L Rivet President Art Newcomb, who has owned a home in Hatboro since 1985, heard the old Millford Rivet/Penn Fastener building, located at 220 Jacksonville Road, was up for sale so he and his brother John jumped at the chance and moved to the building in 2000.

C & L Rivet is a manufacturer of high-volume precision cold formed parts. They produce fasteners in many different types of industries including automotive, medical, fire suppression, ammunition, and spend significant time and resources in improving other faster applications as well.

Ciao Bella Cakes was owned and operated by Jennifer Golden, a pastry chef for over twenty years, who worked in some of the top restaurants and bakeries in the Philadelphia area including Le Bec Fin, The William Penn Inn, and Aux Petits Delices.

As a Culinary Institute of America Baking and Pastry Graduate, Jennifer worked closely with her clients to develop creations that delight both the eye and palate and reflect the magic of the event.

In addition to specialty cakes, Ciao Bella offered specialty desserts as well.

After 10 years, Ciao Bella Cakes closed their doors in December 2023.

The Borough thanks Jennifer for making Hatboro her home and wishes her well on her future endeavors!

Thank you to these businesses for choosing Hatboro as their home!!
